

Meet the 2018 Family Medicine Midwest Plenary Presenters

Friday - Panel Presentation "Advocacy at Every Level"

Shiva Bidar-Sielaff, Madison Alder, District 5, and UW Health Chief Diversity Officer. In her role as the first CDO for UW Health, Shiva provides vision, coordination and strategic leadership for the design and implementation of UW Health's initiatives on diversity, equity and inclusion. She was elected to the City of Madison Common Council in 2009.

Mallory Davis, MS4 Rush Medical College. She has been a strong advocate for community health in Pilsen, a predominantly Latino community where she lives in Chicago.

Kellia (KJ) Hansmann, MD, MPH, is a second-year family medicine resident at the University of Wisconsin-Madison Family Medicine Residency Program who has been involved with advocacy as a medical student and as a resident. She is also considering pursuing an advocacy/policy fellowship after residency. At Northwestern University as a medical student, she served as president and public health/health justice chair of her school's chapter of the American Medical Student Association (AMSA) and vice president of FMIG. In these positions she helped to organize advocacy activities including a public health and advocacy orientation for new students and an advocacy in action seminar series.
